Luang Prabang: Temples and Villages on the Mekong with Baci

Today you will explore the villages and livelihoods of the locals living off of the Mekong River. After breakfast you will meet your guide and be transferred to the boat pier to board a traditional longtail boat. You will cross the river for Xieng Mien, in the district of Chomphet. Even though the Mekong River creates a short distance between Xieng Mien and Luang Prabang, you will quickly be able to see the differences between the two. You will take a stroll through the village lanes and visit three historic temples Wat Xieng Mene, Wat Chomphet and Wat Long Khoun. Board the boat and head downstream to the village of Ban Jan. Take a walk around to observe this village which is centuries old and known for their production of pottery. You might even want to further support the village and pick up one of the fun handmade trinkets sold by the locals. Afterwards, head further down river and take in the lush hilltops and serene river while on the less traveled stretch of the Mekong. Once you reach the fishing village of Ban Chompjua you will transfer to one of the local families' fishing boats to join them as they check traps. The styles and traps will vary depending on the season and level of the Mekong. Learn how time consuming the art of fishing is from the locals as they demonstrate the making of one of their gigantic fishing nets. You will then return to your long tail boat for a picturesque coast while you enjoy some traditional Lao dishes prepared right on the boat by the boat driver's wife. Finally, head for Ban Xing, the Lion Village, for your last village stop. This farming and fishing village, believed to have been settled since the 16th century holds some of the oldest traditional homes near Luang Prabang. You will then join your village hosts' home for a Lao baci ceremony. Your guide will explain this traditional blessing ceremony as you receive well wishes from elders in the village. After the ceremony you will travel up river back to Luang Prabang while taking in the setting sun.
